

The politics of responsible attitude.

The company BT Technologies LTD. (Bulltraders.com) with full responsibility declares that the trading of OTC financial instruments carries high risks of money loss. However, most traders and investors in the pursuit of quick profits often neglect the basic rules of money management and risk management. Moreover, some of them consider online trading as a means of last resort that will solve their problems or will help them to achieve financial prosperity and wealth.

Internet trading is a multi-faceted and complex process that requires the appropriate knowledge and skills and, most importantly, experience and substantial financial investment. You may need much more time to make the trading of OTC financial instruments profitable.

Before you start the trading of OTC financial instruments, make sure that you do not treat the trading as a solution of acute financial or other problems.

Do not invest all your money and do not put yourself on the brink of survival. Make sure that this is not your last money.

Understand and accept the fact that the trading involves risk. Carefully read all the internal policies of the company, the client agreement, the regulations of quotation, the warning of the risks. Before the opening of a trading account consult with a company specialist and ask all the necessary questions.

By accepting this policy a client of the company confirms that he/she uses the trading and company services consciously and responsibly and does not consider the provided service as a means of last resort. A client also confirms that does not consider himself in the category of socially vulnerable citizens, does not have financial problems, has a steady source of income, does not identify himself/herself as a person with disabilities. A client acknowledges that he has sufficient knowledge for independent work with OTC financial instruments and takes full responsibility for the result of trading.

This policy is an integral part of the client agreement and the acceptance of it's conditions is a mandatory part of the opening procedure of a trading account at BT Technologies LTD.
